

The Egan-Neshaminy game will get the season off to a roaring start. Egan won the Philadelphia City championship last year and everyone will be anxious to see what the 1967 edition of Dick Bedesem's Eagles look like. Neshaminy had a disastrous campaign last year, with wholesale coaching changes certainly playing a part.

Whether Pete Cordelli can restore that old confidence into the Redskins is the big question in the Langhorne area. At first glance it would appear to this corner that Neshaminy will be stronger and that Bishop Egan, minus quarterback Pancho Micir, will not be as powerful as a year ago.
