Enlist now. Relax. Go later.

It's called the Delayed Entry Program, and it's the best way to get what you want out of the Army.
The best way to get the skill training you want.

The best way to serve where you want to serve.

If you qualify, you sign up now. Then sit back and relax, waiting up to 365 days for the training you really want - whether it's in medicine, law enforcement, personnel, or whatever.

Enlisting now and going later also lets you pick Hawaii, Korea, Alaska, the Canal Zone, Europe or almost anyplace in the continental U.S.A. to serve your country.

While you're counting the days, you can let your hair grow, lie on the beach, play your records, kiss that special person good-bye.

The Delayed Entry Program. It gives you time to do a lot of planning.
