and the Orange assumed a 7-6 lead. It was far from being a tight ball game. Fallsington used nearly thirty men in the fray. When Art Driscoll climaxed a long sustained drive in the second quarter by sliding off tackle at from the 3, Fallsington was practically certain that its first championship bid had met with success.

During the waning moments of the first half, Langhorne recovered a Falcon fumble on the 10 yard marker, but they couldn't capitalize on the break. Relying upon a running game, the Redskins were thrown back and lost the ball on downs.

Chet Caffey, a substitute, pulled the play of the fine Indian Summer afternoon in the final chucker. Bill Cloak was running off tackle from his own twenty yard line when Caffey rushed in from his guard position, snatched the ball from Cloak's hands and went twenty yards for a startling touch-down. That was enough and a few minutes later the game ended.

The excellent punting of Al Monti shone throughout the fray for the victors. Joe Napoli once again played a top-up game of ball on the offense. The Fallsington back runs like a deer and is perched among the first five in sectional individual scoring ranks, despite the fact that Fallsington has played but three major games.

BRISTOL ELEVEN HAS FIRST HOME FRAY TODAY

Bristol High School, beaten but once this season and winner of its last three successive games, faces Bordentown High School on the local field this afternoon. The Braves, heavily favored to turn in their fourth triumph, are looking forward to the start of their Bi-County championship drive which starts next week.

The offensive minded Cardinal and Grey machine will make its first home appearance today. Fans will get their first opportunity to watch Armand Cappiotti, district scoring leader, in action as well as the entire team that has hit a great stride. Bristol dropped a 14 to 6 verdict to Trenton Catholic in its opening game, while Bordentown was beaten by the same club, 19-0, two weeks ago.

McCollick Wins 3-Round Decision Over Davis

William "Tarzan" McCollick had little difficulty in winning a three-round decision over Charles Davis, of the Crispus Attucks Club last night in the amateur boxing bouts held in the club-room of the Philadelphia Rifle Club.

The Diamond fighter was very impressive as he pounded his opponent continually to win each of the rounds. The judges were unanimous in their verdict.

Chet Caffey Pulls A Great Play in 20-Yard Score

By Jack Gill

Fallsington met its first test in the Little Four Conference and didn't buckle when the chips were riding. The minions of Coach Mike DeHisi romped to an easy 19 to 0 triumph over the Langhorne Redskins yesterday on Playwick Field.

So far the Fallsington football story has been the highlight of the year. Coming back into the game after a two year lay-off, the small township institution has been stinging the ears off their reputedly better rivals. Unbeaten in small school competition, the Orange is now perched at the top of the Little Four heap, sharing the leadership with pass pitching Newtown.

The victors had after the championship lost little time in raking up a score on hapless Langhorne. Little Joe Napoli, Fallsington's "scat" back, took a reverse across from the 25 yard line standing up. Johnny Mansmann plunged off tackle for the extra point results of the chief engineer's inspection are not yet known.

Quoting from a letter received by the Bristol Association from C. E. Baller, Chief Fish Culturist of the Pennsylvania Board of Fish Commissioners, here is some very interesting information for local anglers: "We are glad that you were pleased with the bass which were recently planted in Silver Lake at Bristol, and hope that in time they will afford the anglers of that community some real pleasure. The water area has been placed on the schedule to be regularly stocked with bass each year."
