

'OWLS' FAVORITES TO WIN TOMORROW OVER LANGHORNE

Annual Turkey Day Game
To Be Played On The Langhorne Field

BENSALEM CONFIDENT

Jack Hansen To Lead The Cornwells Youngsters Who Are Out for A Sure Win

The Bensalem Owls will be the favorite over the Langhorne Redskins tomorrow morning as the two teams clash in their annual Thanksgiving Day classic. The game will be played on Playwicky Field, Langhorne, starting at 10.30 a. m.

The Owls are picked over the Langhorne team because of their strong comeback in the last four games. The boys of John Bixler lost their first five tilts of the season and then came back strong to win the last four. A triumph tomorrow will give the Cornwells lads an even average for the season.

And, in the last quartet of battles, the enemy has failed to cross the Bensalem goal line. Thus far this season, the Bensalemites have registered 145 points. Their foes have countered 114 counters.

Langhorne's record for the season shows three victories and four defeats. The team has scored 92 points while its opponents have registered 112 points.

Leading the Bensalem youngsters will be their star backfield ace, Jack Hansen, who along with Don Abe, Ed Laster, and Kleha form a strong backfield. The Lang backs are Fallon, Knox, Sch. and Righter. The Bensalem team must be able to stop the passing twins, "Doc" Righter and "Inky" Schneider, to entertain their hopes for a triumph.

Both teams have strong linemen in Salki, Turner, Fareno, and Dapp for Bensalem, with Fizzano, Keller, Martindell, Wheeler, Tucker, Hibbert and Kaleda for Langhorne.
